

FACULTY SPOTLIGHT: PATRICIA LIVERMAN

PATRICIA LIVERMAN
MFA - CAL STATE LA
1999 ARMORY FELLOW

Patricia's work is an investigation of paint as a physical material. She is interested in paint's ability to adapt and evolve, qualities that intrigue her in the human condition and in nature as well. Organic processes, the ebb and flow of building and devolving, and cycles of growth and dissolution are influences in her work. Patricia is fascinated by spontaneous systems of order that emerge from disorder. In her work, she likes to introduce some degree of randomness into her process to allow room for something unexpected to emerge.

Patricia Liverman began teaching at the Armory almost two decades ago and has worked in almost every program – and with every age group -- along the way. Her work has been shown throughout California in galleries, universities, and alternative spaces. Venues include Art Share LA, Coagula, UC Santa Cruz, and Cal State Poly. Patricia lives and paints in Pasadena.

Patricia often teaches Art for Two for toddlers and families and Painting for adults, as well as other classes for children and teens.
